The ETC's Location-Based Entertainment Studio, now in its second semester, brings together a diverse team to create entertainment experiences for a variety of clients. With projects ranging from complete museum concepts to complex theatrical elements, the LBE Studio works with clients to design and implement exciting location-based experiences with the ETC's trademark dedication to compelling stories and cutting-edge technology.

Current projects include concept development work for the Erie Railroad Museum and the American Music Crossroads Center, prototype development for San Francisco's Magic Theatre, modifications to the Jam-O-Drum platform and installations for the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon's Entertainment Technology Center.
